Introduction

The INTERLACE project's website is meant to be very simple and to provide a very brief view of the 4 core principles of the project:

- User-centric design. The new blockchain-based platform must be usable and useful to the current members of the Sardex circuit and to future members of new circuits that will adopt the platform.
- Abstract State Interaction Machines (ASIMs). The modelling and specification is performed using the ASIM extension to the Abstract State Machines method.[1]
- Blockchain technology. The infrastructure will be decentralized and designed to be further distributed.
- Open source. The ASIM and implementation code will be open source.

The website also provides links to downloadable public deliverables, which will be made available as they are completed.

Access

- The URL is:

Graphics Design

The project website was designed by the Sardex graphic designers Matteo Sanna and Andrea Lecca. The criteria followed were ease of use, simplicity in design, and a colour scheme that is compatible with Sardex S.p.A.

Web Technologies

The INTERLACE Website was built using Webpack, using the following technologies:

- HTML
- CSS
- Javascript - ES6
- jQuery
- Webpack
- Bootstrap
- Font Awesome
- Sass
- Browsersync
- Animate.css
- Modernizr

Please see the Appendix for the relevant software licences.

Extensibility

As new deliverables become available the corresponding area of the website can be expanded to accommodate the new downloadable documents.
